Dear Mr Thompson

The Dobell electorate elected you as their representative based on the promise that there would be no tax on carbon dioxide. To fulfill your commitment to the electorate you must vote against the tax on carbon dioxide currently before parliament.

Accompanying is a summary of the deceptions, misrepresentations, lies, myths, evasions and omissions that subverted climate science. The many misrepresentations of climate science are the basis for legislation before parliament. A vote for the tax will be your endorsement of, and support for, that corruption of climate science. To fulfill your commitment to the electorate and your oath as a member of parliament you must vote against the tax.

Recent events indicate that the Multi-Party Climate Change Committee has not been advised by its adviser, Will Steffen, of the Inter-Academy Council's damning assessment of the IPCC's processes and procedures that produced the IPCC's 2007 report. That report is the basis for the government's tax. The body of the IAC's report brings into question all of the IPCC's statements of confidence and likelihood with 800 of these in the conclusions on the science alone. It is, therefore, hard to know which, if any, of the IPCC's Fourth Assessment Report of climate science can be relied upon. Thus, there is no basis for the tax. You must vote against the tax.
